Chief Executive Officer, Halogen Foundation Singapore

Ms Tse was a former NUS Global Merit Scholar under the Double Degree Programme – Bachelor of Business Administration (Honours) and Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering (Honours). She also led youth teams on overseas Youth Expedition Projects under Singapore International Foundation.

Ms Tse's community engagement work at NUS allowed her to ignite her passion for helping young people to discover themselves and realise their potential. This led to her career switch from the corporate world to a role in the not-for-profit sector in 2012.

Today, Ms Tse is the CEO of the Halogen Foundation Singapore, a local charity with a focus on transforming young people through leadership and entrepreneurship education. She oversees strategy development, training operations, partnerships and fund raising, including the launch of the National Young Leader Award, Halogen Internship Programme and Salesforce BizAcademy. Halogen has impacted up to 117,666 youth and 4,904 youth influencers through their work. By providing quality leadership and entrepreneurship programmes, Halogen supports education, corporate and social service sectors to build a sustainable ecosystem and nurture the next generation of movers, makers and shakers.

As someone whose life path has been shaped by the generosity of other, Ms Tse feels strongly in giving back to society. She remains active in her community engagements, and currently provides mentorship under the NUS Female Engineering Mentorship (FEM) programme 2016 and Young NTUC Youth Career Network.
